April 2, 2016

Dear Class of 2019,

Welcome to the Emory Law community! We are delighted that you are here for our annual Visiting Day weekend. I hope you spend this weekend learning about all of the resources and benefits our students enjoy while preparing for their legal careers. We invite you to explore the campus, meet the Emory Law community, and, most importantly, ask questions. This weekend is your time to leave no stone unturned.

We constantly work to ensure our students have the best experience possible and are well prepared for a fulfilling career in a profession rooted in service and devoted to the pursuit of justice. We are committed to enhancing professional opportunities for our students through expanded connections with our alumni across the country, as well as through enhanced career planning resources.

Emory Law is about much more than a great classroom experience. From intramural sports teams to world-class cultural centers for art, theater, and musical entertainment, our students have much to explore on Emory’s campus and in Atlanta.

Emory University has played host to renowned visitors, such as the Dalai Lama, Salman Rushdie, and Alice Walker. Emory Law students have organized events and conferences featuring Nobel laureates, politicians, and distinguished legal scholars. Emory Law also hosts numerous symposia, with subjects ranging from environmental law and economics to human trafficking to international terrorism.

We work every day to provide our students with a deep knowledge of the law and a set of valuable skills to prepare them for practice. We challenge our students to apply their knowledge, as both lawyers and citizens of the world.

I look forward to meeting you this weekend.

Sincerely,

Robert A. Schapiro
Dean and Asa Griggs Candler Professor of Law

Transactional Law Certificate Program Overview, Room 1C, first floor Gambrell Hall
Professor Sue Payne, Director, Executive Director and Professor in Practice
Katherine Koops, Assistant Director for Center for Transactional Law and Practice and Adjunct Professor of Law

This two-year program prepares students to add value to a transaction from the day they begin working as a “deal lawyer” through participation in a series of hands-on simulation courses, workshops, and seminars. This session is recommended for students with business, corporate, and transactional law interests.

Externships, Room 1D, first floor Gambrell Hall
Professor Sarah Shalf, Director and Administrative Professor of Law

Designed to facilitate a hands-on learning experience, our externship program places students with government agencies, public interest organizations, judges, and corporations in the metro Atlanta area during the fall and spring semesters of their second and third years.

Clinical Program Overview, Room 1E, first floor Gambrell Hall
Melissa Carter, Director of Barton Child Law & Policy Center
Randee Waldman, Director of Barton Juvenile Defender Clinic

Students participate each semester and work on real cases with clients under the guidance of professors and skilled professionals. This session is recommended for students with public service law interests.

Public Service Overview, Room 1F, first floor Gambrell Hall
Rita Sheffey, Assistant Dean for Public Service

Emory Law’s Center for Public Service prepares students for legal careers in the public sector. Our innovative curriculum includes traditional courses in public interest law as well as a range of topics from international human rights to homelessness. We offer experiences beyond the classroom through clinical programs, our extensive externship program, practice societies, and networking with faculty and alumni who work in the field.

Who’s Who at Emory Law

Robert B. Ahdieh
Vice Dean, K.H. Gyr Professor of Private International Law

Robert B. Ahdieh served as law clerk to Judge James R. Browning of the US Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit before his selection for the Honor’s Program in the Civil Division of the US Department of Justice. While still in law school, Ahdieh published what remains one of the seminal treatments of the constitutional transformation of post-Soviet Russia: "Russia’s Constitutional Revolution—Legal Consciousness and the Transition to Democracy." Ahdieh’s work – on administrative law and financial regulation – has also appeared in the Michigan Law Review, the Minnesota Law Review, the NYU Law Review, and the Southern California Law Review, among other journals. He has been a visiting professor at Columbia, Georgetown, Princeton, and numerous other universities – both in the United States and abroad. He earned his JD at Yale University and AB at Princeton University.

Frank S. Alexander
Sam Nunn Professor of Law, Co-founder and Senior Advisor for the Center for Community Progress

Frank S. Alexander is the co-founder and senior advisor of the Center for Community Progress. The author of over fifty publications in the fields of real estate finance, law and theology, and community development, some of his recent publications include Georgia Real Estate Finance and Foreclosure Law 2015-2016 (11th ed. 2015) (with Sara Toering and Sarah Mancini); Land Banks and Land Banking (2d ed. 2015); Neighborhood Stabilization Strategies for Vacant and Abandoned Properties (2011); Christianity and Human Rights: An Introduction (2010, with John Witte, Jr.); and Christianity and Law: An Introduction (2008, with John Witte, Jr.). Alexander has received the Student Bar Association Award for Most Outstanding Professor (2015, 2014, 2010, 2004), the Ben F. Johnson Faculty Excellence Award (1998), the Emory Williams Award for Distinguished Teaching in Professional Education (1991), and the Student Bar Association Award as the Professor Who Best Exemplifies the Ideals of the Legal Profession (on eight occasions). He earned a BA at the University of North Carolina and his JD and MTS at Harvard University.

Emily Baker
Partner at Jones Day, Member of Emory Law’s Alumni Board

Emily Baker is a trial lawyer whose practice includes both the defense of individual and class action consumer and products liability cases and the prosecution and defense of other complex commercial cases. Her experience covers nearly all aspects of discovery and trial preparation, including taking and defending depositions, motion practice, and the preparation of fact and expert witnesses for trial. She has been a member of several trial teams in high-profile cases, including the defense team that successfully represented The Sherwin-Williams Company in a public nuisance action brought by the Rhode Island attorney general. Over the last two years, Emily has tried seven product liability cases to verdict in federal courts in Florida and California and state courts throughout Florida. She is a member of the the State Bars of Georgia and Florida and the Defense Research Institute. She is a sustainer in the Junior League of Atlanta, has participated in Emory University’s mentorship program, and is a master in the Lamar Inn of Court.

Christopher Bly
Assistant United States Attorney – Economics Crimes Section

Chris Bly is an assistant United States attorney in the Economics Crimes section of the United States Attorney’s Office in Atlanta, Georgia. After graduating from Emory College and Emory University School of Law, Chris served as a law clerk for Judge William C. O’Kelley on the United States District Court for the Northern District of Georgia and Judge Stanley Marcus on the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals. He practiced in the business litigation sections of Jones Day and King & Spalding before becoming a federal prosecutor. He previously served on Emory’s Alumni Board.

Katherine A. Brokaw
Assistant Dean for Academic Engagement and Success

Katherine A. Brokaw graduated magna cum laude from Princeton University and was the principal speechwriter for Gov. Thomas Kean of New Jersey before attending Columbia Law School, where she was a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar and articles editor of the Columbia Journal of Law and Social Problems. Brokaw clerked for US District Judge Robert P. Patterson Jr. in the Southern District of New York. She practiced at Davis Polk & Wardwell in New York and King & Spalding in Atlanta for several years as a commercial litigator before coming to Emory Law in 2005. She also worked as an attorney assistant to the Board of Bar Examiners, helping to write and grade bar exam essay questions for five years. Brokaw is a member of the State Bar of Georgia Committee to Promote Inclusion in the Profession.

Richard D. Freer
Robert Howell Hall Professor of Law

Richard D. Freer clerked for a federal district judge and a federal appellate judge before litigating with the Los Angeles firm of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher. The student body at Emory has named him Outstanding Professor seven times, and the Black Law Students Association has named him Professor of the Year five times. Emory University recognized him with its Scholar/Teacher Award in 2008, and he is a recipient of the university’s highest teaching award, the Emory Williams Award for Excellence in Teaching. He also has received Emory Law’s triennial Ben F. Johnson Award for Faculty Excellence. He has served as visiting professor at George Washington University and at Central European University in Budapest and has been in residence at Regent’s Park College, Oxford, and at European University Institute in Fiesole. Freer is author or co-author of sixteen books, including leading casebooks on civil procedure, complex litigation, and business associations. He is the only person to have served as contributing author to both of the standard multivolume treatises on federal jurisdiction and practice: Moore’s Federal Practice and

Who Best Exemplifies the Ideals of the Legal Profession (on eight occasions). He earned a BA at the University of North Carolina and his JD and MTS at Harvard University.

Cindy Gershman
Associate Director, Emory University Office of Financial Aid
Cindy Gershman began working at Emory University in 2007. Before Emory, she worked in the financial aid office at Nova Southeastern University in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, for ten years. She has worked in financial aid since 1996 and holds an MBA from NSU. Her favorite aspect of her job is assisting students with their financial aid questions to help them implement the best strategies to be successful—not only as a student, but after graduation as well.

Melissa Hawkins
03L Partner at Albury-Hawkins Attorneys at Law, Member of Emory Law’s Alumni Board
Upon graduation from Emory University School of Law, Melissa Hawkins began her career as a bond attorney where she served as counsel for governments and other entities who borrowed money for public purposes. Now, she advocates for families in Georgia, representing husbands, wives, mothers and fathers in divorce proceedings, legitimations, child custody matters, child support modifications and paternity actions. She is a member of both the State of Ohio and Georgia Bar. In 2005, she was named “Cincinnati’s Generation Next” in “Who’s Who in Black Cincinnati” and was a Minority in the Profession Scholar (2006-2007). She’s also a member of the American Bar Association (2006) and the Emory Law Alumni Board (since 2009).

John Leach
Director, Emory University Office of Financial Aid
John Leach is the director of the Office of Financial Aid at Emory University. Before joining Emory in 2014, Leach served as director of college counseling at Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart in Princeton, New Jersey, since 2011. Prior to that, he was associate dean of financial aid at Davidson College where one of his primary duties was providing financial aid education to parents, counselors, and students throughout the nation. A former history teacher at Montgomery Bell Academy (Nashville, Tennessee) and history department chair at Greensboro Day School (Greensboro, North Carolina), Leach completed his undergraduate studies at Davidson College and has a master’s from Vanderbilt University.

Lydia Russo
Assistant Dean for Professional Development and Career Strategy
Since 2012 Lydia Russo has overseen a transformation of Emory Law’s Center for Professional Development & Career Strategy from a traditional law school career services office into a student-focused career center. Her talented, dynamic team provides customized career planning to students based on their own unique interests. Russo brings a decade of legal education experience to the Career Center. After an accomplished tenure as a commercial real estate lawyer at Rogers Towers, PA in Jacksonville, Florida, Russo found her passion bridging students’ law school experiences with their professional aspirations. Following her passion, she went on to serve as the associate director for Career Services at both Roger Williams University School of Law and Florida Coastal School of Law before joining Emory. She received her JD with honors from the University of Florida College of Law, where she served as an executive editor on the Florida Law Review, and her BA magna cum laude in psychology from Bates College.

John Paul Stevens of the US Supreme Court. He worked with the law firm of Sidley & Austin in Washington, DC, where he practiced general and appellate litigation. Prior to joining Emory Law, Dean Schapiro taught for two years at Duke Law School. He was appointed dean in May 2012, after serving as interim dean for the previous academic year. Dean Schapiro teaches courses in constitutional law, federal courts, civil procedure, and legislation and regulation. He earned his BA at Yale and his MA at Stanford University.

Mark D. Wasserman 86L
Managing Partner at Sutherland Asbill & Brennan LLP, Member of Emory Law Advisory Board
Mark D. Wasserman has been the managing partner of Sutherland for ten years. He has more than twenty-five years of experience as a corporate lawyer representing and advising private and public companies throughout the United States and the world. He counsels clients on a broad range of business matters, especially mergers and acquisitions and issues relating to federal and state securities law. Wasserman served as co-chair of Sutherland’s Corporate Transactional team and was a member of its executive committee prior to being elected as managing partner in 2005. He has been named to The Best Lawyers in America in areas of corporate law since 2005, and he was selected for inclusion in Georgia Super Lawyers® (2004-2011). He was the co-chair of the Atlanta Legal Aid Society Capital Campaign. He’s also a member of the board of directors and Chair of Development Committee for Equal Justice Works. Wasserman serves on the board of directors for many organizations including American-Israel Chamber of Commerce, Metro Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and Atlanta Symphony Orchestra.

Alumni Network

More than 11,000 alumni across the US and in countries around the world become your network when you join Emory Law. In addition to the 40 percent of Emory Law graduates practicing in Atlanta, Emory’s strong alumni network connects graduates to other legal markets in major metropolitan areas around the country and all over the world.
Studying Law in Atlanta

Emory, an internationally respected university
Emory University is recognized as one of the world’s leading institutions of learning, combining nine undergraduate, graduate, and professional schools with the largest healthcare system and sponsored research base of any university in Georgia. Emory maintains active partnership with many of the city’s preeminent institutions, such as The Carter Center, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and Georgia Institute of Technology.

Emory has been recognized for its commitment to maintaining sustainability as one of its top priorities. In 2013, the university was named the nation’s top “Higher Education Institution” by the US Green Building Council’s Center for Green Schools in its “Best of Green Schools” report.

As a law student, you will be able to take advantage of state-of-the-art university fitness and aquatic facilities, which are conveniently located on both the Clifton Road and Clairmont campuses.

Dooley, a quirky Emory tradition
“Presidents may come, professors may go; professors may come, professors may go; students may come, students may go; but Dooley lives forever!”

Do not be alarmed if you see an odd apparition roaming the campus during your visit this weekend. It happens to be Dooley Week, an annual Emory tradition. Dooley, the “Spirit of Emory and Lord of Misrule,” is a biology lab skeleton that maintains a vigorous and unpredictable presence during a week in his honor each spring. The identity of the students wearing Dooley’s regalia is one of the best-kept secrets on campus.

Atlanta, a global city with Southern charm
With a population of more than 5 million people, the Southeast’s largest city provides countless opportunities for legal networking, externships, and summer jobs. Metro Atlanta ranks third in the US for the number of Fortune 500 company headquarters, and the regional offices of nearly every federal agency—including the Securities and Exchange Commission and Environmental Protection Agency—are nearby.

Atlanta is also a great place to live. With a temperate climate and renowned Southern hospitality, Atlanta offers a warm welcome for everyone. Catch a Braves or Falcons game; visit the High Museum of Art or Georgia Aquarium; go strolling, running, or cycling through Piedmont Park or Atlanta’s lovely, tree-lined neighborhoods; get tickets for the award-winning Atlanta Symphony Orchestra; or listen to the latest indie-rock band playing at Eddie’s Attic. There is a range of restaurants for the most, and least, discriminating foodies—from exclusive Buckhead bistros, to dim sum on Buford Highway, to Southern style barbecue just down the street.

Emory Law has countless opportunities for hands-on, experiential learning and an environment of support and cooperation that encourages challenging the status quo. We empower you to discern your legal path right from the start of your legal education, from a first-year elective that explores an area of possible legal interest to a wide range of simulation programs, externships, clinics, and student organizations that guide you in finding your legal voice.

Clincs
Emory Law clinics offer curriculumbased, real-world experience through direct client service in a range of settings under the direct supervision of law school faculty. Each clinic’s docket is designed to fully immerse students in all aspects of the legal process.

- Barton Policy and Legislative Clinics
- Barton Juvenile Defender Clinic
- Barton Appeal for Youth Clinic
- International Humanitarian Law Clinic
- Turner Environmental Law Clinic
- Volunteer Clinic for Veterans

Externships
Externships are an integral part of the Emory Law experience, taking the skills and principles you learn in the classroom and applying them in practice. Our externship program places more than 150 students with more than 120 government agencies, public interest organizations, courts, companies, and small law firms. Under the supervision of an attorney, you will hone real-world skills, including research, writing, advocacy, interviewing, counseling, litigation, and case investigation.

Fortify your skills in trial advocacy through the Emory Mock Trial Society, which will help fine-tune your litigation skills through competitions. Develop a knack for brief writing and oral advocacy through the Emory Moot Court Society, which will help you become an effective appellate advocate.

The Technological Innovation: Generating Economic Results (TI:GER) Program is a partnership between two world-class institutions—Emory and Georgia Tech—that unites law, business, science, and engineering students in learning to take innovative ideas from the lab to the marketplace.

Emory Law’s robust Transactional Law and Skills Certificate curriculum is the gold standard for transactional law education, preparing students to add value to a transaction from day one on the job.

The Kessler-Eidson Program for Trial Techniques immerses you in “learn-by-doing” oral advocacy, connecting you with nationally recognized trial lawyers, judges, and professors as you learn—and experience—the mechanics of litigating a case.

The David J. Bederman Emory Law School Supreme Court Advocacy Program (ELSSCAP) is the only student-run Supreme Court litigation program in the United States. Students work under the guidance of experienced litigators as they handle all aspects of ELSSCAP’s work which includes producing persuasive petitions for certiorari and amicus briefs for the Supreme Court.
